The Smoot amendment authorizing the President to place the American valuation plan in effect where considered advisable contemplates the fixing of ad valorem rates in the bill on the present foreign invoice basis. In many instances this will mean higher rates of duty than fixed by the House Ways and Means Committee, which first decided on rates on a foreign valuation basis and then scaled them down about January I, when the rush of buyers for summer dresses is expected to develop. The supply of raw gingham in the market is limited at the moment, which is beiping prices to maintain a normal basis. Any sudden rush of buyers, dowever, is looked to create some increase in price. in Annual Session To-day; May Discuss Prices.

Association of Woolen Manufacturers will open to-day in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, according to J. J. Nevins, secreblow at the American valuation to embodied in the Fordney tariff Already on shaky ground, with a few whole hearted advocates, the seal was practically wrecked by the industries will address the open convention and will discuss recent developing his annual address. Though the President tried to appears Representative Fordney and his followers by recommending a provision making it possible to place American power and an interesting discussion is valuation in effect gradually, there is no probable when this question is taken clisquising the fact that when the bill becomes effective under his scheme it will continue to fix duties under the foreign valuation plan.

Sponsors of the American valuation plan made no effort to conceal their disappointment. They took the position for the Problem's recommendation was better than nothing, and they are Advance of raw silk prices, which are HAROL now about $8.25 a pound, are tending to spur demands for higher figures for some silk fabrics. The increase is par-ticularly noticeable among some retail-ers selling silk fabrics, who are continmay be possible to obtain American valuation through a gradual process.

Amendments to carry out "resident Harding's tariff recommendations were introduced in the Senate by Senator Smoot (Utah) immediately following the delivery of the annual address. The amendments provide:

An authorization to the President to place the American valuation plan in effect in the case of such articles as he may consider desirable.

The general trend of economy ap-parent on the part of the public has been felt by manufacturers of oil cloths in increased purchasing. A prominent manufacturer reports record sales of this kind of merchandise, to be used for tables instead of linen, with the demand apparently increasing. The limprovement in texture of these cloths combined with the finer patterns now evident is said to have added to the increased use of oil cloths for all kinds of household purpose: Oil cloth window shades and wall coverings are also said to be coming into increasing use.

An interesting sign of what may be expected for spring trade is shown in the orders being received for advanced delivery by various mail order houses. Many of these firms report a decided change for the better, as indicated by the discontinuation of many rush order deliveries and the increasing return to quantity buying on a sixty day delivery hasig. This tendency, according to dealers, indicates a return of confidence on the part of buyers. Indicatens are for a further advance in deliveries with the approach of spring buying.

parent last Sunday has caused a feeling of hope among many retailers. Sales of heavy overcoatings and suits the last two days have received a decided impetus, while dealers selling Christmas goods and novelties report a similar tendency in their line. Prices for overcoats now on display range all the way from $35 to $65, with the $45 and $50 conts proving the most popular. According to statements of buyers there is little likelihood that the market will be oversupplied if present weather conditions continue. Goods are said to be moving rapidly, and whore merchandise coming in from wholesalers in this country or abroad is received it is passed along to the public at an attractive price without delay.

Reason for High Raw Silk Prices.

Early manipulation of the raw silk market by Japanese dealers, combined with the recently developed craze for Canton crepe by American consumers, is given by a large silk dealer as the reason for the continued advance in taw silk prices. The Japanese are said to have ceased production of the filatures early this summer in anticipation of the expected demand, and in this way they have kept the supply even with the demand. Local silk manufacturers believe present prices will be maintained for the next three months at least until orders have been placed for spring demonstrated.
